Contents

List of illustrations ix
Acknowledgements xi

1. Introducing Indo-European ecologies 1
   Jenny H. Larsson
2. Strangers from the waters – serpents, canids, horses and others: Indo-European conceptions of human ecology and the CENTRE–PERIPHERY spatial schema 7
   Riccardo Ginevra
3. Cattle, cosmology and sacrifice: An Indo-European interpretation of burnt mounds 49
   Anders Kaliff
4. Monsters and cattle: A topos and its mutations in Indo-European mythology 77
   Peter Jackson Rova
5. Churning the ocean of milk – a historical-comparative study of the Indo-European root menth*$_{1/2}$- 101
   Birgit Anette Olsen
6. Farming, fertility and foaming water: Indo-European ritualizations of life-giving growth forces in Scandinavian agriculture 133
   Terje Oestigaard
7. A tiny Indo-European 'cow-suckler'? A new etymology for Breton buzhugenn, Middle Cornish vethygan and Gascon bousic, boudic 'earthworm' 163
   Anders Richardt Jørgensen
8. The Baltic house snakes in an Indo-European context 191
   Jenny H. Larsson

9. Afterword: The milk-drinking and milk-suckling snake revisited 213
Davide Ermacora

Biographies 243